FOREWORD

Theme and Foreword

Prior to the Renaissance in Europe, the idea of people clustering in villages, free from lordly oppression, was a unique and an attractive one. Gradually the settlements drew more and more inhabitants, and a new class developed, the middle class. From this caste, inventions and revolutionary concepts spread to serve mankind.

These were the first really free people, the city-dwellers. They alone had shed the fetters that, since the beginning of time, had burdened men's souls and had kept them from fulfilling their potentials.

"Cities have always been the fireplaces of civilization, whence light radiated out into the dark world." —Theodore Parker.

Residents of a city can not, like their rural counterparts, be completely self-sufficient. Men and women must learn to co-operate in order to survive. Because of this, urban inhabitants have, for centuries, formed guilds and unions to perpetuate needed skills.

Every metropolis consists of sundry subdivisions, indispensible and unobtrusive. Most of these groups provide the necessities of life. However, a few appeal to the aesthetic side of man.

The printing presses of a city can be artistic as well as informative. Periodicals publish articles too lengthy or too narrow in scope to attract many readers in a newspaper.

The Yearbook is a type of magazine for high school. Contained in it are facts concerning all of a school's clubs, pictorial records of the various classes, and — for most of the student body — a profusion of fond memories. Through this one book, the students are allied under the undefinable spell of comradity. This alliance, the purpose of the Yearbook is the key to a united school — and a unified city.

"Much is given us: much is expected from us . . ."

This is truly understood and executed by our chosen teacher. Today's world demands ever so much from us, and extremely instrumental in preparing us for this society are our teachers. Through their efforts, we are guided along the educational paths which open the doors to success and happiness.

Wayne Central is indeed fortunate to have as a member of its faculty one such dedicated, respected teacher. By her efforts and through her understanding we were taught basic speech and grammar. From her ardent interest in her students and the assistance willingly lent to them, she has endeared herself to the student body. Never has she faltered when we've sought her help and guidance.

Because of her sincerity and dedication, we, the '67 "Eagle" staff proudly and warmly dedicate this book to MRS. HELEN MILLER.

DEDICATION

February 27, 1915, was an important day for Mr. and Mrs. McLane of Dansville, New York. On that day a daughter, Helen Louise, was born to them.

After attending high school, Mrs. Miller furthered her education at Geneseo State Teacher's College, 1933-34, and transferred to Buffalo State, where, in June of 1937, she received her Bachelor of Science Degree in Education with a major in Social Studies and a minor in English. Since that time she has done graduate work at Syracuse University and Genesee Valley Study Council.

In 1940, Helen McLane became Mrs. Charles Miller. She is the mother of two daughters, Nancy and Sue, and one son, Tom. Both of her daughters are married and have children which distinguishes Mrs. Miller as a grandmother. She attends St. Mary's of the Lake Church.

Mrs. Miller became a member of the Wayne Central faculty in 1955 and since that time has steadily been teaching and aiding the students here.

She has shown active interest in the Girl Scout movement and acted as a leader during four years. Also among her pastimes are her participation in the American Legion auxiliary, the Rosary Altar Society, and the Ontario Youth Council.

The '67 "Eagle" staff and the student body of your school, Mrs. Miller, wish you the best of luck always and express our deep gratitude to you for your help.

TOP TEN

As the glowing lights of a thriving city shine throughout the sky, the future for these students seems also brilliant and hopeful. After four years of diligence and hard work, these students have achieved a rewarding position in the Top Ten. All of these young people should be praised and congratulated for their efforts in attaining this respected position.

EBBA GROENEWALD

Hi there!

This is Ebba speaking and you better listen now, since I'm saying this only once:

THANK YOU!!!

for the help from both students and faculty when I had troubles with almost everything, when I couldn't keep up with homework and tests, for the friendship I found in everybody and which made me feel like a Wayne student. In other words, I want to thank you for this wonderful year you have given me. You all know that I deeply hope to come back again pretty soon, and I hope that this wish may come true.

Love you so much,

Ebba

FOREIGN EXCHANGE STUDENTS

Dear Students,

When I came here everybody helped me with all things so I very soon felt at home in your school. I like your school very much and among the things that are different from home that I especially like are that you have so many activities and that everybody can speak so freely with the teachers.

During my stay here I have learned much about America and I hope that you have learned something about Sweden. I would like to thank you all for all the fun we have had together and I hope that when I go home I still will have contact with some of you. If you some day take a trip over to Europe I would be happy to have you stay in my home.

Gunnar Gothner

GUNNAR GOTHNER

OUR EXCHANGE STUDENT

MARY ANN DOYLE

Dear Students,

My summer as Wayne Central's foreign exchange student was a very exciting one for me. Living with the van der Werf family of Den Haag, the Netherlands, I became acquainted with the way of life of an European family.

After a summer of new experience such as the jet rides and a trip to Paris, I returned with a better understanding of the culture and people of the Netherlands.

I was proud to be the representative of our school, community, and country and I wish to thank you for the support which you have given to this program.

Sincerely,

Mary Anne

Women made to be not to be understood.

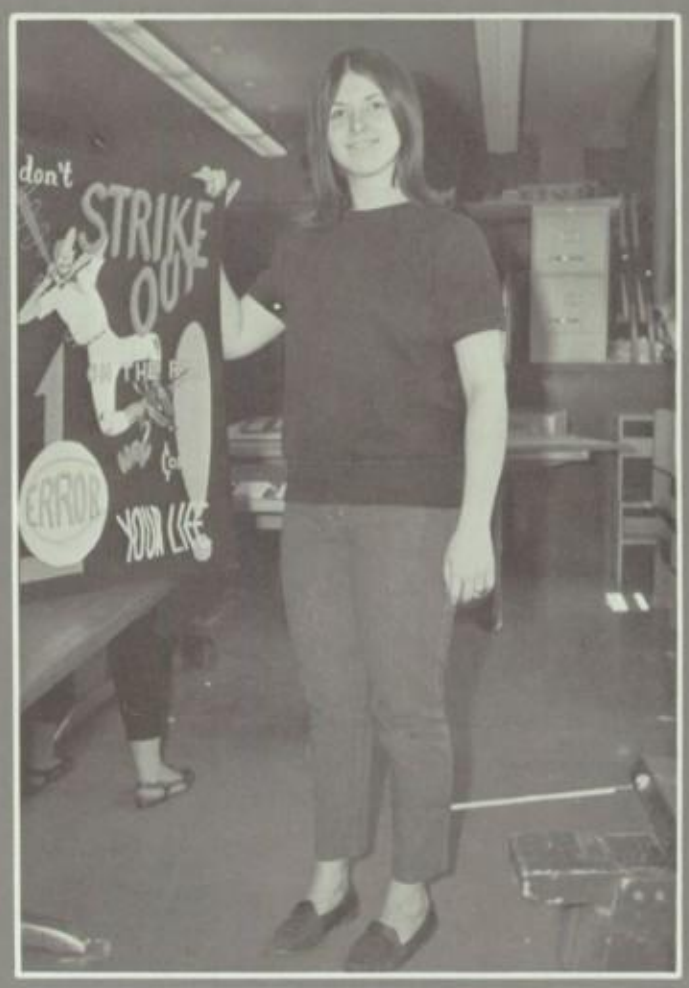
I think it was a very happy accident.

Most people remember to take their nightgowns off when they get up.

A good listener is usually thinkin' about somethin' else.

If he kissed you once, he'll kiss you again.

Rules are for when brains run out.



Did you do that poster before or after you dented the fender?

Silence is golden, but who am I to make money.

GRADUATION

The narrow road of the Class of '67 suddenly widens and ahead of us lies a new, exciting highway filled with the sundry obligations and the joys of college life, employment, the Armed Forces, or married life for each of us. The bright lights of our future lure us into the impetuous traffic of a demanding society as slowly and sadly the lights of Wayne Central dim and swiftly drift into memories which will forever be a vital and unforgettable portion of our lives. The security, friends, and routine which for twelve years have directed us and encouraged us after this day, June 23, 1967, will no longer dominate our class.

Many of us leave Wayne and cross the bridge which aligns us with a more advanced education in preparation for the future. Whether this be in business, agriculture, technology, engineering, medicine, teaching, or any other professional career, may we all find success, happiness, and satisfaction. Only through individuality and care in leadership, judgment, foresight, and character will we attain our fondest dreams and educational goals.

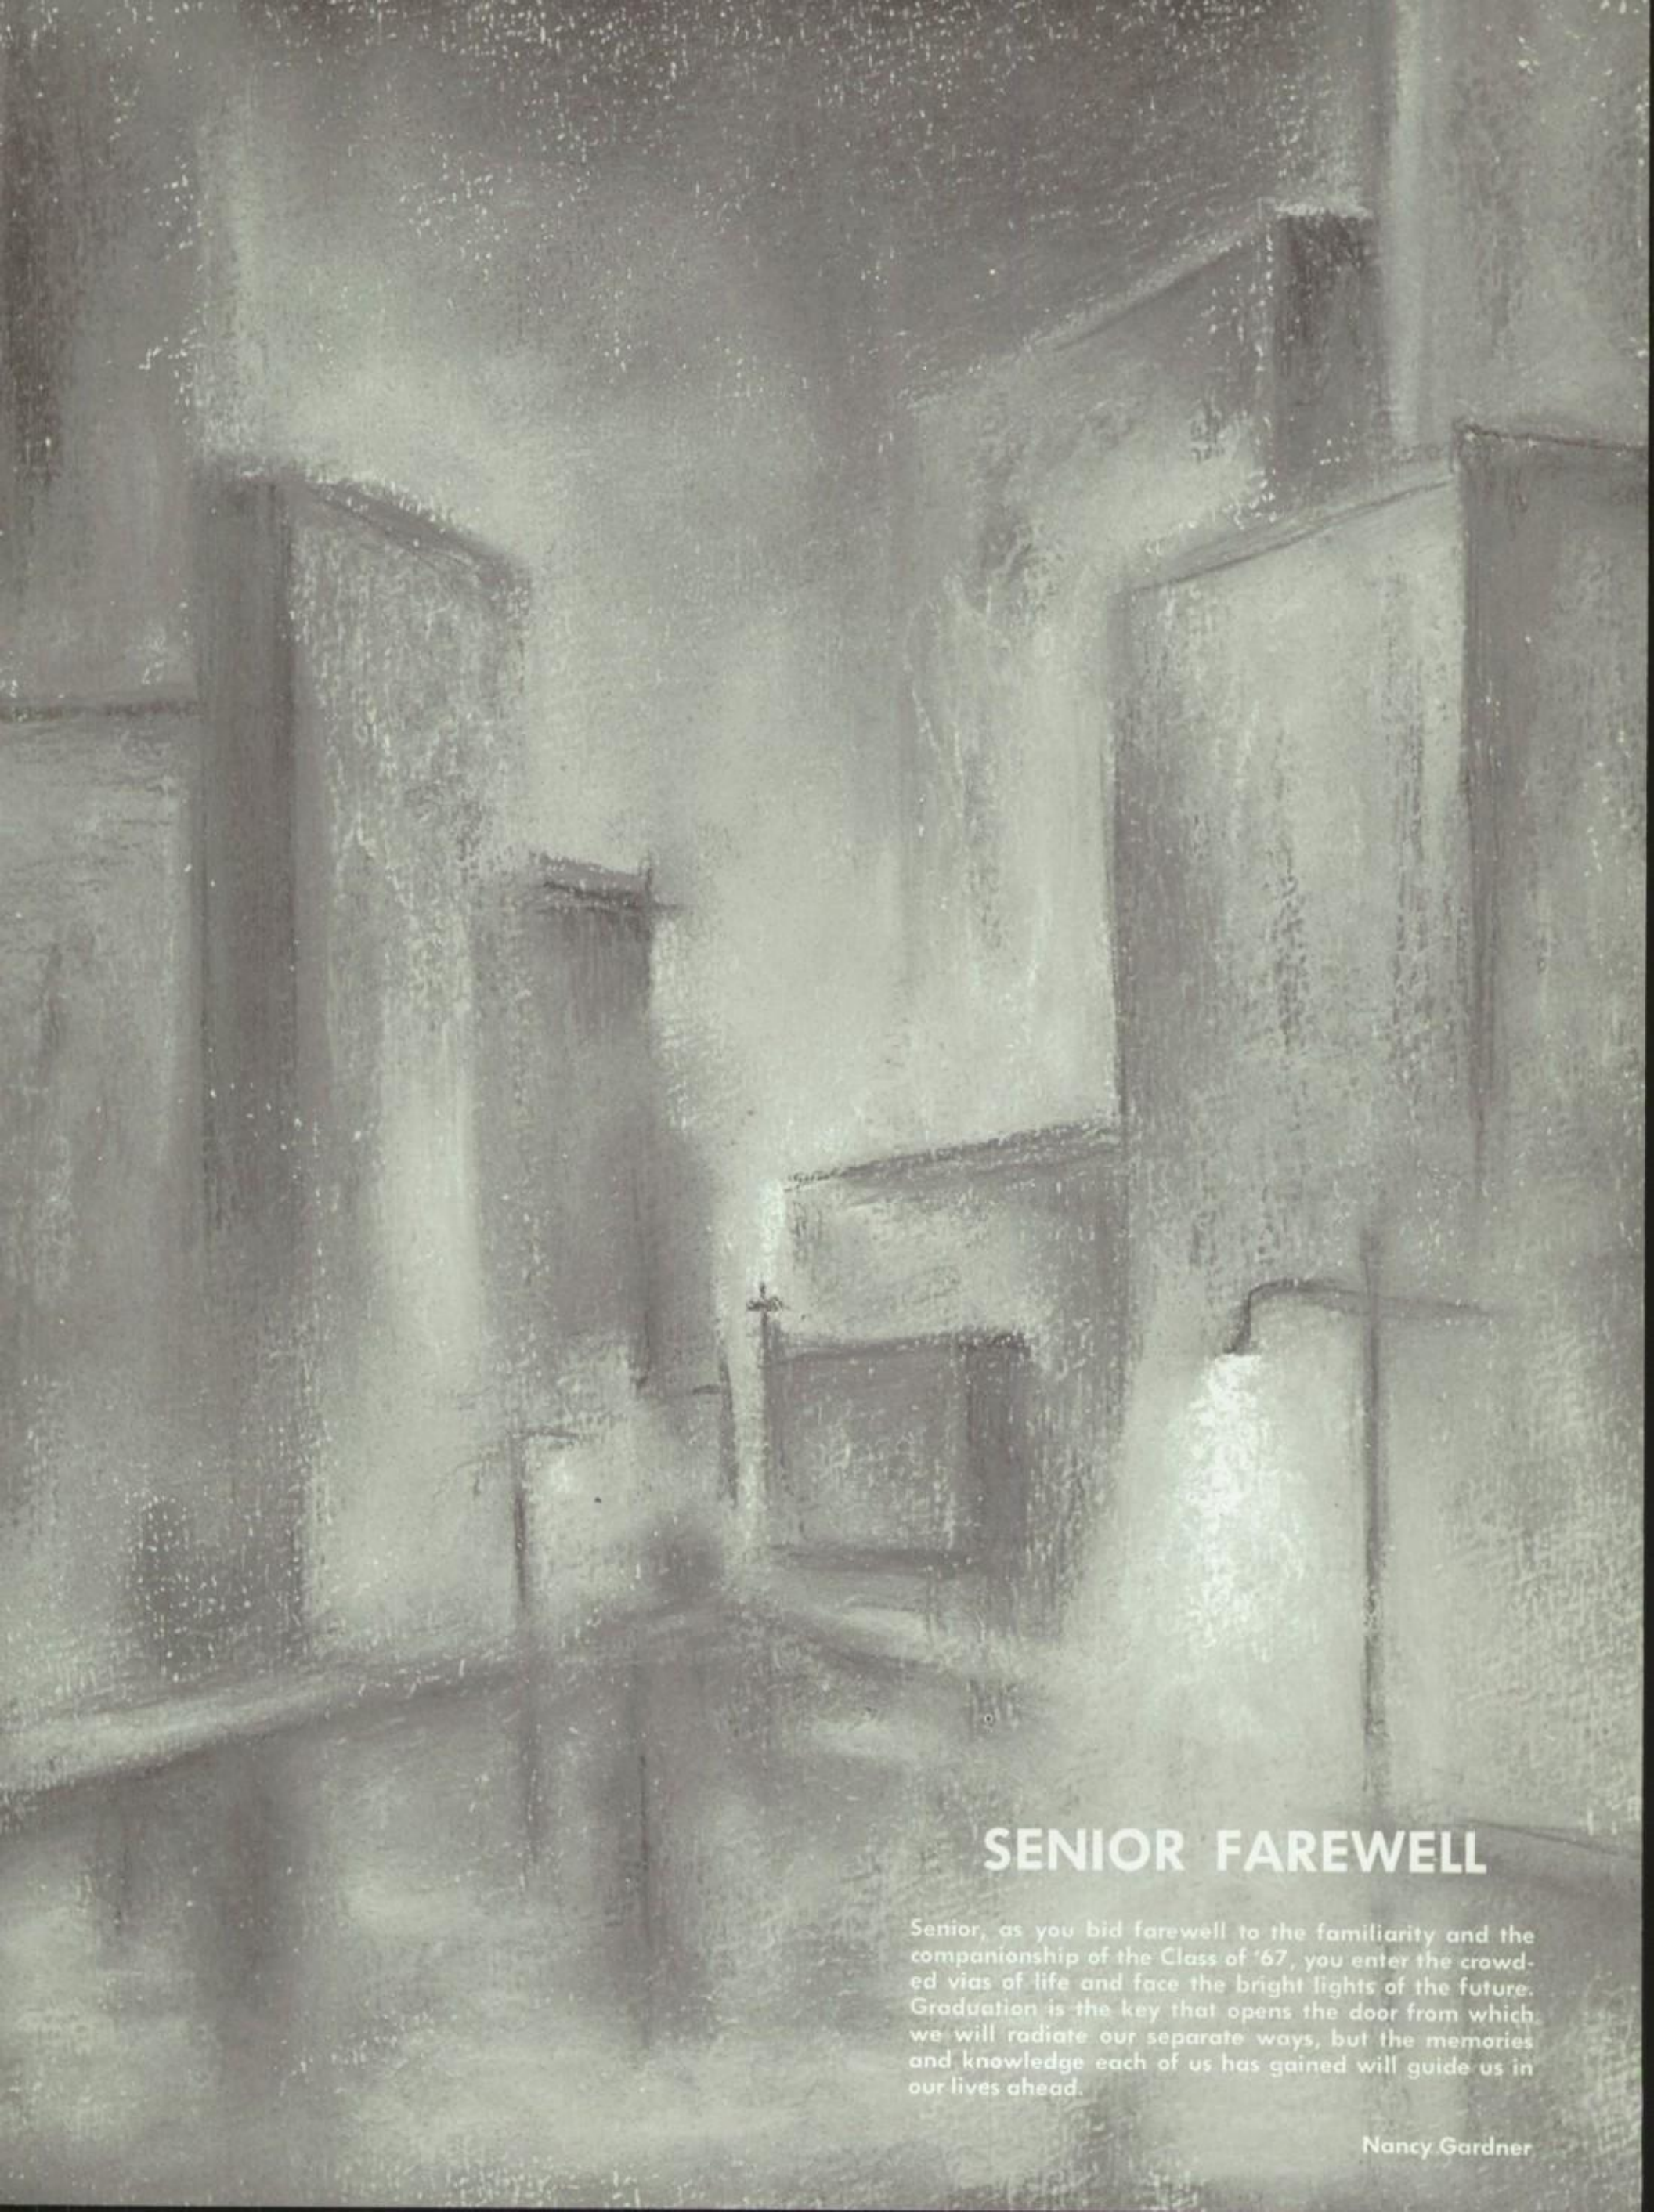
For those of us who recognize and are willing to acknowledge the demands and rewards of our armed services, the doors of the Army, Navy, Air Force, and Marines are open wide. Likewise is true of any students who admirably possess the desire and perseverance to willfully surrender a very short yet ever memorable period of their lives, in service to the underdeveloped and underprivileged nations of the world through the Peace Corps.

There are those among us who will immediately assume the responsibilities and thrills of married life. For those students, the carefree life of youth is halted, and they embark on the complex, burdensome traffic of assumed adulthood.

Regardless of the direction we travel or the path we follow, we will always remember the guidance we received at Wayne and the friends we made here.

"All hail to thee Wayne Central!
We pledge our loyalty.
Our cherished thoughts will always
Keep us close to thee.
Your glowing lights will lead us
Forever through the years.
And guide us dear Wayne Central
Through our life of joy and tears."

Nancy Gardner



SENIOR FAREWELL

Senior, as you bid farewell to the familiarity and the companionship of the Class of '67, you enter the crowded vias of life and face the bright lights of the future. Graduation is the key that opens the door from which we will radiate our separate ways, but the memories and knowledge each of us has gained will guide us in our lives ahead.

Dear Seniors,

You are about to step out into a world which is very exciting and challenging. Have you developed that emotional stability which is necessary to keep pace with the speed at which everything seems to be moving? Have you trained your mind to cope with the ever-increasing demands that society places upon the invividual?

Abraham Lincoln once said, "I will study and get ready, and perhaps my chance will come." If the education you have received in our school has not been adequate for you to reach your life's goal, I would urge you to seek further training. Time and money spent on an education will probably be the best investment you could ever make.

In whatever endeavor you engage, be it honorable, I wish you the greatest success and happiness.

Sincerely,

Thomas C. Armstrong

Chester E. Tepper
Principal

Dear Seniors,

Let me congratulate the Class of 1967 and compliment you as you complete your basic education. Your real education is about to begin.

Very often high school students are not aware that the school is part of the community. The school on occasion may be thought of as belonging to the teachers, or to the school board, or to some other individual or group. Too often the real purpose of the school is not understood even by adults. To say that schools belong to the people and that they are everybody's business too often results in the discovery that what is everybody's business is nobody's business. If we are to build America and keep her strong, then today more than ever—education—like freedom—is everybody's job.

It is hoped that your interest in our schools will continue through the years after your graduation. And we who are dedicated to the cause of education pledge to you that we shall continue to strive with all our might to make your schools the best that it is possible to make them.

My sincere best wishes to the Class of 1967.

Chester E. Tepper

Mr. Charles Sones

Dear Seniors,

I could offer many platitudes at this time, but as seniors about to go forth to take your places in our great society, I don't think you are looking for trite remarks. Wherever you go—whatever you do—I hope you will have compassion for your fellowman.

It has been a sincere pleasure knowing you.

Sure, you might have done better—who couldn't? But there is never a closed door to further education if you wish to take advantage of the opportunities around you. If Wayne Central can help you, be sure to come back. Come back anyway—we like to see old friends.

Dear Seniors,

Best wishes for a long and happy life.

FACULTY AND PERSONNEL

Regardless of size, a metropolis cannot function properly without sufficient units of "little people" to maintain the everyday flow of life. These units are composed of men and women who perform tasks of little glory, receiving satisfaction from being depended upon.

Each school, being a separate pulsing city, possesses corresponding services under the title of faculty and personnel.

In lieu of the Department of Public Works, the janitorial staff patiently sweeps debris from the halls after "big games," and quietly maintains the tidy environment beneficial to better studies.

If an army travels on its stomach, then both cities and schools are armies, for nowhere else is such a quantity of food consumed. Cafeteria personnel labor diligently each day to prepare a nourishing meal to sustain the scholastic army.

Just as the friendly policeman guides us through the city streets, the encouraging guidance counselors direct the students on their pathway of life.

"Neither rain nor sleet nor dark of night . . ." applies to both the urban postmen and the schools' bus drivers. Throughout the year, these dedicated chauffeurs carry a multitude of pupils to and from school and extracurricular activities.

A comparison between school and metropolitan secretaries would be completely unjust. Our energetic "office ladies" not only type and take dictation, but also double as accountants, errand boys, switchboard operators, and communication experts.

Teachers, the construction engineers on the high school level, lay a foundation for the building of every student's life. From seemingly endless years of mathematics, science, English, history, and language, pupils develop the practical and spiritual values required in life.

UNDERCLASSMEN

An escalator traveling to the top floor of a building accurately symbolizes the travel of an underclassman from his freshman year to the top floor, his senior year. A student travels slowly, stopping periodically at each floor and finally moving up towards his final goal.

At the bottom flight of stairs is the freshman, confused and bewildered by all the people and the traffic on the ground floor. After a few weeks though, this same student is self-assured and confident of his future. As a freshman he walks uncertainly to his first day's classes and wonders just what is expected of him this year. He soon finds out that the transition between Junior High and Senior High is great. No more do his teachers help him answer every little question. Now, in his freshman year he is expected to decide for himself many of the minute decisions that were decided for him in his previous years. To answer the major decisions of the class this year, officers were elected by the students. This year's choices were: President Tommy Ikewood; Vice President Steve Schimerhorn; Secretary Carol Reynolds; and Treasurer Lee Eaton. These students will guide the class through the most important freshman year, as a policeman guides the traffic of the city through the downtown streets. Snarls occasionally occur, but usually these are easily straightened out by the officers, or through conferences with their superiors.

The traffic squeals to a stop at the red light, waiting impatiently for the light to change, and finally zooming off into the horizon. How like the sophomore class! The students in their tenth year of school pass through uneasily and finally speed onward to the eleventh grade. The sophomore year is but a stepping stone to the future. Leading this class is Gary Caskey, President. Mindy Bell is secretary, attending all the meetings of the class. Honesty and integrity are the requisite of a treasurer, and for this job Bob Gardner was elected. With his help, the debits and the credits of the class are precisely recorded in the class yearbook. What would happen if the president should be absent on the day of an important conference? If this were to happen, Becky Hanks, Veep, would easily be able to take over the president's post.

"Can you believe it, we're almost there!"

As the tenth year melts into the student's junior year, he is filled with the wonder that he has come so far. Since his first awkward days in kindergarten, the student's desire was to become a senior and be graduated. Well, for these kids the time is almost here. They have successfully completed their eleven years of schooling. When their junior year is over, they will be among the elite in their age groups, seniors. The Unattainable will be Attained! Leading the Class of '68 is Margaret Bernardi, President; Marty Schneider, Veep; Norma Sonneville, Secretary; and Jane Hightower, Treasurer.

Hesitantly, impatiently, and finally self-assuredly, the students tread up the endless stairway to wisdom. Before these young adults realize it, they are at the very top of the building. The elevator rose to its highest point, and the students disembarked and continued on their wearisome journey.

Mr. Norman Shaffer

The main ingredient of a yearbook is the people. Without the cooperation and patient assistance my staff and I have received from you, the student body, the faculty, and the administration, our EAGLE would not have been possible.

I owe the most gratitude to the members of my staff for the interest, loyalty, and persistence they have demonstrated this past year. Much of their leisure time was given up to complete this book, but from this challenge they have gained much satisfaction. Together, as one, we can say that we have met our challenge to make this a memorable yearbook, but only with the guidance and encouragement of our advisor, Mr. Norman Shaffer. For his advice we thank him.

To Nancy Hilton, Jane Hightower, and their staff, I wish all the luck and encouragement in the world. From the quality of work they have shown this past year, I know they will be very successful.

Also to the Seniors I wish much success in their future endeavors. I sincerely hope that they will always cherish the memories recalled in their EAGLE.

Now, therefore, I humbly offer my personal thanks to all and present to you the EAGLE OF 1967.

JUNIOR HIGH STUDENT COUNCIL

Governing institutions were a part of primitive societies. As these people formed cities, they developed a government which would fulfill the need of rules and regulations. In this same way the Junior High Student Council is a small body based on the government like that of a city. Its main purpose is to provide a democratic rule for grades seven and eight, preparing them for Senior High Student Council.

Under the guidance of Miss Anita Gullo and Mr. Harold Shay, they sold stationery and sponsored dances to raise money for the foreign exchange student program and for the pictures to beautify the classrooms and corridors.

Its officers included President Loren Colburn, Vice President Debbie Patterson, Secretary Diane Richardson, and Treasurer Arthur Heberle. They have done a more than adequate job in governing the students in Junior High.

Judy Rueger

An integral part of each city is its government. From City Hall laws are issued and enforced, maintaining an order to urban life. This order allows growth of a city and its people.

The Student Council is the unit of a school through which the students govern themselves. Not only does the Council enforce laws, it unites the student body and acts as a liason in developing understanding between the faculty and pupil. Often, the Student Council spreads good will and builds school prestige.

This year, under the leadership of President Darwin Bushart and Vice President Kathleen Collins, and assisted by Secretary Eileen Collins and Treasurer Thomas Gentile, the Student Council seeks to improve the Student Handbook, making it more a book from the students, not just for them. Offering his own ideas and guidance was Mr. Norman Shaffer, Student Council Advisor.

The union of men in large masses is indispensable to the development and rapid growth of their higher faculties. The National Honor Society exists to honor students possessing the highest qualities of leadership, scholarship, character, and service.

The club members, under the guidance of Mrs. Margaret Bebernitz and Mrs. Helen Miller, aid the school in the field of service whenever called upon. Each year they have an Annual Induction Assembly and take a trip in the spring. President Mary Anne Doyle, Vice President Barbara Traas, and Secretary Ann Burger led the organization through a very successful year.

Cities play an important role in the lives of the American homemakers. The massive grocery, discount, and department stores supply the homemaker not only with quantity but also a wide choice of merchandise of good quality at economic prices.

Under the guidance of Mrs. Donna Kiersbilck, the members of the Future Homemakers of America learn how to run a home smoothly, efficiently, and economically. The Co-Presidents, Sherry Benedict and Donna Revelle, Vice-President, Kathy Hargarther, Secretary Joyce Gilliam, and Treasurer, Alma Teeter helped Mrs. Keirsbilck through a very successful year.

Huge steel structures and skyscrapers rise into the air. Cars roar over intricate highway systems. These are seemingly unimportant things in our everyday lives, but without our scientists our cities would not be as they are today. The new metals and other materials discovered by scientists, which make possible the huge buildings and roads, have made our cities the booming places they are.

Here at Wayne, the Science Club, headed by Mr. Cataldo, gave its members an opportunity to further their scientific knowledge. Their many activities included weekly meetings, field trips, and an annual picnic. They also sold magazine subscriptions, and had car washes and a skating party.

The Troika chairman of the club was David Field. Other officers are Troika members, Alan Powell and Scott Barend, and Secretary Rick Swarthout.

Under the direction of Mr. Gerald Slater and coordinate advisor Mr. Charles Sones, this group continues to further the progress of teaching.

The Projection Club is capably managed by President Martin Ottenschot, Vice President Gary VanHouter, and Secretary-Treasurer Jack Gagliano. Their efforts are both very essential and important for the advancement of education in our school.

In order to increase and extend aid for the future of this club, a Junior High Projection Club was established.

The heartbeat of a city is its newspaper. Through this journal the people learn the news of their city. This paper contains romance, scientific news, and editorials on the conditions of their metropolis. Whenever a distinguished person travels to a city, the daily chronicle carries an article on that visit the importance of it.

"Focus", Wayne's paper, contained all the basic elements of a large city's paper. Editor James Switzer was in charge of the "Focus," editing all articles turned in and laying out the first dummy of the paper.

Last November the seven staff editors attended the Times Union—Democrat and Chronicle 23rd Annual High School Editors Conference in Rochester. They planned to enter the "Focus" in the N.Y. Times Contest for high school papers, this year being held at St. Bonaventure.

Under the guidance of Mr. Taber, this monthly chronicle continues to grow and prosper. The Wayne Central High School thanks these people for their generous allotment of time, skill and money in putting out this newspaper.

A great library contains the diary of the human race. Wayne's library is not as large, and does not have as much material as the large libraries, yet a student may find adequate books for research and enjoyment. The purpose of the Library Club is to bring together those students interested in working in the library and in learning library procedures. Under the guidance of Mrs. Hanson, they assist in keeping materials in order and in helping other students find information they may need.

An important contribution to a city comes from the hospitals and the services which the people of the medical field provide for the citizens. Our school's Student Health Club, under the guidance of Mrs. Ethel Brewer and the leadership of President Patricia Haak, Vice President Bonnie Bassage, Secretary June Wright, and Treasurer Gay Kunzer, strived to promote medical services in our school and community. The girls assisted in chest clinics and immunization clinics besides having regular meetings and aiding in the nurse's office. This year Bonnie Bassage and Pat Haak attended the State Health Conference. Several field trips were taken throughout the year and an annual Junior Red Cross Drive was conducted.

Pioneers pushed forward through the wilderness, giving birth to cities, towns, and civilization. Their ideals are the foundation of our nation, state, and community.

Yorker Club provides students with a deeper understanding of history, specifically state history. Special individual and group projects, supervised by Mr. Suberville, and a trip to Cooperstown enrich each Yorker's stay in the organization. Heading these pioneers this year were Roy Malone, President, John Sullivan, Veep, and Deborah Gallant, Secretary-Treasurer.

INTERACT

Within every city there are organizations which are set up for the service and betterment of the community which they represent. Interact Club, sponsored by Rotary, gives its members an opportunity to serve their community.

Some of the many activities of the boys in this club were a roller skating party and the sale of Christmas decorations. Their two projects, one, a foreign service project and, the other a community service, were a donation to the Foreign Exchange Program, and the helping of potential dropouts.

With Mr. Tepper as advisor, Alan Powell as President, Gary Finley as vice president, and Jim Switzer as secretary, Interact Club experienced a very successful year.

FRENCH CLUB

Each trade in a city has its own system of apprenticeship. Craftsmen hire young boys to hand down to them their art. Some of the young men may leave the program for "greener pastures", but many remain to carry on the business.

The Future Teachers organization endeavors to acquaint its members with the role and the duties of school teachers. This year for the first time, our school had such a group, led by President Barb Stevens, Veep Leslie Graham, Secretary Elizabeth Place, and Treasurer Valerie Tepper. Under the guidance of Miss Alexander, the FTA planned to observe teachers at the high school and possibly elementary school levels. Future projects include an expansion of the student aide program and a part in the Project Headstart this summer.

Paris, the city of light, was the subject of many of the slides and movies shown in French Club. This club enabled its members to further their study of France and its people.

Besides viewing slides and movies about France, the members were often entertained by foreign exchange students from France and others who have visited there. Other activities included a Christmas party and an annual dinner in June.

The president of the club was Diane Michielsen, with Barb Stevens as secretary, Sharon Buhler as treasurer, and Chris Hyland as refreshment chairman. These officers, along with Mrs. Miles as advisor, led the French Club through a very successful year.

FFA

Although the city and its people and industries are vitally important to us, there is another major phase of American life that is equally important. This, of course, is agriculture.

The FFA was created for the purpose of teaching leadership, co-operation, service, and brotherhood to the boys interested in agriculture as a vocation. These boys, under the leadership of Mr. Faulks, have actively participated in the Rochester Horticulture Society Show, at the Palmyra Fair, State Parliamentary Procedure Contest, and money raising activities such as the Donkey Basketball Game. This year's leaders include President Gary Eaton, Vice-president Wayne Schultz, Secretary Robert Barth, Treasurer Ronald Barth, Sentinel Ed Quiggly, and Song Leader Tim Ryan.

MUSIC

A large city is always a center of culture. One of the main phases of culture is music which provides enjoyment for many. A city not only provides an opportunity for those interested in musical entertainment, such as concerts, but also for those desiring to study. The music department of Wayne Central conveys the musical medium of cultural enlightenment for our school.

There are many students in our school who enjoy participating in the Wayne Central Senior Band, under the direction of Mr. Gerald McClure. This band diligently practices and strives to maintain a high quality of music for our school and community. Concerts, assembly programs,parades, county festivals, the New York State Sectional Music Association Festival, and the All State Program are included among the activities of the band. After studying music and practicing laboriously for many years, students acquire the necessary skill which they must possess to enter individual competition and All State Festivals. Tom Curtis acted as President this year and was very capably assisted by Veep Barb Trass, Secretary Pat Baker and Treasurer Diane Michielson.

For the younger students there is a Junior High Band which Mrs. Roberta M. Updaw directs. Students playing in this band have an opportunity to improve their skill thus becoming a welcome addition to the Senior High. These students have an opportunity to play in competition at the N. Y. S. Sectional Music Association Festival and to entertain at winter and spring concerts and Junior High assemblies. Their leaders are President Joe Stromonine, Secretary Art Herberle, and Treasurer Peter Herrmann.

"Music is the soul of the city."

The Glee Club, under the direction of Miss Anita Gullo, has elected officers. This year's President and also accompanist for 4th year is Phyllis Padgham. The Secretary is Paula Carr. The students practice willingly in order to prepare for their annual Holiday Concert, Spring Concert and occasional Senior High assemblies. Miss Gullo also works with the Girls' Choir and the Quartet for individual achievement. Both the vocal and instrumental departments combined their efforts this year in presenting a musical comedy entitled "Plenty of Money." This, in conjunction with their candy sale, raised enough money to send seven students to Fredonia State for music study during one week this summer.

The Junior High Chorus annually presents very enjoyable performances. As Miss Gullo prepares her younger voices for participation in the Glee Club, they look forward to the All County Competition and the Christmas and May program, and presentation of Junior High Assemblies.

A city is full of music. The same is true of our school, considering how many of the students are involved in our music department. Never will Wayne be lacking in music as long as there are talented and interested students.

"On Wayne Central, on Wayne Central: straight to victory . . ."

Functioning as one of the most prominent departments of the school, the physical education department draws a continuous flow of spectators who longingly watch and envy the capable athletes who successfully perform game after game. After weeks of endless practice, they faced their green light, proceeded with caution, yet seldom yielded to the red light presented by their opponents and thus established highly commendable records for which they were most suitably rewarded at the termination of the year by the annual Athletic Banquet.

In his first year as Varsity soccer coach, Mr. Imhoff kept the colors of Wayne flying high as he directed a well chosen team freely along the road to success. Captains Tom Schlegel and Jerry Cody co-operated well with their coach and assisted him in his new position. JV co-captains Jim Cantin and Paul Carr worked well and encouraged the enthusiasm for their coach, Joseph Molino, and teammates which drove them to obtain a fine record.

With the return of Coach Thompson and the assistance of Stan Weller, the Cross Country team overcame and outran their opponents with little resistance. This year they were fortunate to have Gunnar Gothner, our exchange student, as one of their distance runners as well as Senior veterans Bill Caskey, Jack Kelly, and Bob Eaton.

Continuing in their winning way, the Wayne hoopsters again amassed numerous victories this year as they outshot and outplayed their traditional foes. The Seniors profited well from their previous experience and were indeed invaluable to Coach Heimberger in piloting the squad to the triumph. Hard practice and good playing attributed to the good fortune of the JV's. Under the leadership and the instruction of Coach Imhoff, these boys received the practice and experience which will soon be evident as they move into the Varsity berth next season.

"Elbows" Miller completed a very laudable season by starving his wrestlers into victory. Returning matmen Mick Switzer, Dale Hill, Dan Racine, Darwin Bushart, and Dan Moak created excellent individual records and contributed to a propitious team triumph. This was the outcome of many hours of intense practice and perfected techniques and holds.

Again this year Wayne's bowlers, under the guidance of Dennis Fryer, terminated an unparalleled season. Among the outstanding bowlers were Jerry Albright, Marty Ottenschott, and Kevin Hurley.

Certainly Wayne was indeed fortunate this year to have such a fine team of trackmen. Jack Kelly ably established his commendable record on the pole vault as did Bill Caskey in the triple jump and the high jump. Bill Shortsleeve achieved success on the hurdles and likewise was true of Gary Eaton in the mile.

The baseball team this year was composed of a strong nucleus of excellent hitters and defensive players from last year's team. Both coaches, LaChuisa and Stoner, fared well from the efforts of their ambitious and able athletes.

The record of the golf team was far above par and suitably showed the enthusiasm and skill of its members.

Led by Tom Curtis and Steve Sullivan and guided by Mr. Weller, the tennis team retained their formerly established record with increased perfection of skills.

The most remarkable achievement of the Boy's Leaders' Club this year was the planning and executing of a night soccer game last fall. With the leadership of Mick Switzer as president, Steve Sullivan as first vice-president, Bob Gardner as second vice-president, Paul Suwijn as secretary-treasurer, and Floyd Schilstra as publicity chairman, this club fulfilled their responsibilities of encouraging school spirit, organizing dances after the basketball games, and assisting in the guarding of doors.

For the fairer sex who also consider life and limb meaningless, there are girl's intramurals. Granted, we don't always play too well, but we try! To organize the sports program and to plan the annual Athletic Banquet there is the Girls' Leaders' Club, steered by President Paula Carr, Vice-president Jane Hightower, Secretary Sandi Vosseler, and Treasurer Barb Gordan.

Willingly and effortlessly the cheerleaders gathered support for the boys. They accelerated school spirit at the games and echoed the familiar cheers. The Varsity squad with Donna Maimone as captain and Paula Carr as co-captain and the JV squad with captain Pam Gentile and co-captain Eileen Collins fulfilled a busy year in a wonderful way.

Because of our excellence in sports and our sincerity in enthusiastic sportsmanship, Wayne has created an unblemished record of triumphs which will forever be recorded in the score books but more importantly, within our memories.
